

- Some people say that Mississippi's Medicaid program has doubled in size over the last five years and the state has to move some recipients to federally-funded Medicare to keep the program from going broke.

Other people say that too many needy people will be hurt by the changes to Mississippi Medicaid to justify the savings.

- What percentage of of the 720,000 people on Mississippi's Medicaid program do you believe are really ineligible and do not deserve to be on it.

Less than 5%
Less than 10%
Less than 25%
Less than half

- Some people say Mississippi is in a budget crisis because the state does not collect enough in taxes and should raise taxes across-the-board to fix the budget.
- Other people say that Mississippi is in a budget crisis because state government spends too much and controlling expenses would would be a better way to fix the budget.
- Some people say Mississippi should raise cigarette, liquor, gambling and corporate taxes to raise money for critical services like education, health care and crime prevention.
- Other people say that raising taxes in Mississippi will only hurt the state's ability to attract industries and create jobs which will hurt our economy.